Introduction

It is necessary and very important to know that people serving for an organization, but they have very selected awareness about “vision and mission”. Many of those who have little idea about the main purpose or importance of mission and vision, and matter of fact that there is no organizational or social obligation of any employee to know, follow or achieve the vision and mission objectives. As discussions, researching and philosophy of this topic, it’s really like an ocean, and regarding benefit for this, it is most essential for an organization’s employees to fully or at least aware of it, further for gaining an experience not only from their own organization they can also consult through research, survey, literatures or articles to increase the awareness and importance of it.

As shared and exchanged this topic with my present and ex - colleagues to know the importance of it. As mentioned above the organization’s mission & vision its quite relaxed and visionary that at least we have some recognition, direction and aspiration and what we are doing, remember, committed and emphasize priority wise in our strategic planning and daily routine work, no doubt about that all our activities or efforts to an end for gaining profit / purse. The main idea for this topic to know how the mission and vision impact & parallel familiar with organization and this is really hard to find what is the exact impact or outcome of it. History of Mission and vision statements is very old or we can say that it starts from the beginning of the world and without knowing or saying these statements are built-in human minds and no doubt about that these statements are very much interlinked. Without vision and mission there is no job that can be started or finished, what is mission and vision that already briefed and world known, the problem is that how we interpreted, related and adapting these statements through organization perspective.

Review Literature:

The vision and mission statements references are taken from world's prominent companies, how emphasize these statements and impact of mission and vision on an organization, and to find meanings and purposes of these statements, how much they align and relevant with each other, particularly what impact of mission and vision on an organization, these are the basic questions that raise in our minds and many organizations pay agencies or consulting companies for millions of dollars to educate and advise them, skill elegant plans to decorate their structures and motivate their personnel and management.

The idea "Impact of mission and vision on an organization" as taken from a famous company's vision and mission statement and the main cause and purpose of this idea is, that there are some interesting points that give an attraction to know what is the reality in it and how our present or ex-colleagues and other organizations departments employees remember these mission and vision statements that we remember, committed and rationalize priority wise in our daily life. The main purpose for this topic to know how familiarize the organization through these vision and mission and many companies run without any direction or rather awareness or knowhow the company direction. It's better and prefer to keep the standard and ethics in this research project to fulfill the organization internal policies and this is also not only for our but many of others organizations policies also. For emphasizing subject matter refer these famous companies' visions, mission's statements that already published worldwide and their familiarity and ranking well known and published on world's famous web sites. The research regarding mission and vision are parallel familiar with the organization name due to unique single statement of mission or vision. The idea "Impact of mission and vision on an organization" I have taken from number of famous companies vision and mission statements and the main cause and purpose of this idea is, that there are some interesting points that give an attraction to know what is the reality in it and how our present or ex-colleagues and other organizations departments employees remember these mission and vision statements that we remember, committed and rationalize priority wise in our daily life. The main purpose for this topic to know what impact or relation the organization through these vision and mission and once again after discussion of many people it's really astonishing that many companies run without any direction or rather awareness or knowhow what is their real direction. As we prefer and remember to keep the standard and ethics in this research project to fulfill the organization internal policies and this is also not only for our but many of others organizations policies also. I would like to refer this famous company's vision, mission that already published worldwide and its familiarity and ranking that already published in world's famous web sites, there are a few brief descriptions of "CH2MHILL" company that published in prominent websites.

Research Design:

Research design is based on (Mixed Method Approach), Primary data collection specially from top of the management and as well as any concerned employee of the organization that direct or indirect involve with the vision and mission of a company, further that it should be in mind that the real understanding of the impact of vision and mission on an organization it's a really tough question and very difficult to answer for it.

This research and topic inclining to use mixed method approach, extracted and evaluated the critical tasks and objectives as per previous researches and for new research or for primary data collection from a prominent organization to minimize the gap between the old one and tie up with this latest research, and further to minimize the problematic distances, the parameter of this topic is very vast and endless and regarding of vision and mission there are thousands of researchers who focused and highlighted the facts and figures on it. Basically mission and vision played vital role for building an organization, a single statement or a unique slogan of mission and vision introduce organization into the world and organization known, fame or recognized through its single statement. Impact of mission and vision on an organization is evident and its relevancy much more benefit and flourishing the organization.

Philosophy:

Philosophy of mission and vision on an organization is that how these statements interlinked with the ideas, objectives, goals, planning, strategy, and written documents that the management set out for an organization.

Philosophy of mission and vision is a perfect combination i.e. a journey or tour that how to make possible to reach the desired destination, its requirement is that what we have and according to the possession or existence we will make possible to achieve our targeted destination.

Mixed Method Approach:

This research is purely based on Mixed Method approach and as mentioned the parameter of the topic, there are already thousands of books and articles published on it, but the question is remain that how we remember or understand this vision and mission related to the organization is very essential, crucial and important.

Primary Data Collection and Analyzing Techniques :

- A) Primary Data collection for this research paper through questionnaire and
 - The location of survey is one of the prominent organization.
- B) For data analyzing using SPSS and Views.

Questionnaires:

1. Our vision & mission is that we have the better place to work and best client dealing, morally high & respected organization globally.
2. Our vision, missions & priorities are that we are a global projects delivery organization, helping our customers /clients, Customer / Client-driven quality, ability and delivered timely and as well as safely.

3. Our strategy is that to enhance careers through professional training, development and advancement opportunities, help an inclusive, stimulating, healthy, creative work environment that values diversity, motivate, guide and empower employees to live the mission, vision and strategy by providing tools, techniques, information and resources.

4. Our priority, reward and profit is that we are all well work independent, responsible financial management providing long-term organization stability, sustainability and agility to invest / grow where we like.

5. We are all well aware of our vision, mission and organization based activities.

Conclusion

The conclusion and bottom line of this research revealing that mission and vision statements are most essential parts of the organization, companies are fame, retained and recognized with these statements. Impact of mission and vision evident and many organizations uses these statements to show their names in the world. A unique word, statement or slogan through mission and vision lift the organization and this single statement leading organization in the world. To make proto type of research paper for minimizing the gaps rapidly and furthermore it's also benefit for direction, evaluation and strengthening of organization.
